

PHP Developer

We are seeking software engineers for Leads360 that will be responsible for designing, developing and maintaining our on-demand lead management application. The candidate should possess strong application development experience and a strong desire to build cutting-edge software.

The perfect candidate will be creative, inventive and inspired to build great software. You will work with professional services, product development, sales and executive teams to architect new features and functionality.

We're looking for a passionate PHP developer who will take business goals, convert them into technical specifications then implement those features using appropriate architectures.

Responsibilities:

- Fully build out the MVC framework & all PHP & MySQL code for client sites
- Implement new features using PHP/MySQL and related technologies
- Optimize performance of our applications (profiling, refactoring, redesigning)
- Suggest new features & help with product design for clients

Requirements:

- Experience with Zend or another MVC framework
- Strong Computer Science fundamentals
- Knowledge of PHP and related technologies
- Object Oriented Design skills
- Knowledge of design patterns and their consequences
- Performance tuning experience
- MySQL schema design and optimization
- PHPUnit and unit testing experience
- Strong familiarity with the Unix command line environment
- Strong English communication skills - ready to talk strategy and work closely with coders and non-coders alike

Pluses:

- You have external, non-work related passion projects
- Experience with .Net, C#, and Java
- Open source project contributions

What's so great about this job anyway?

Leads360 builds great software and is a great company. Our product is remarkably versatile and our rapidly growing customer base is genuinely excited about implementing it. We foster a supportive and collaborative work environment where employees have fun. Group outings and comfortable office space makes a great way to inspire people; it's hard not to love what you do here. What's more, we offer a generous benefits package that includes:

- Highly competitive salary
- A variety of medical coverage choices
- 401K (with matching)
- Flexible time-off